People Thrive Here

Are you someone who believes you should never stop learning? That you can never know too many friendly and interesting people? That you want your personal engagement in the surrounding community and in the larger world to continue in some way beyond that artificial boundary called retirement?

Oakwood Village University Woods on the west side of Madison, Wisconsin is home to a multitude of individuals who share your perspective. They live here, but their eyes and minds take in a much wider world.

Aren't you ready to explore an exciting new phase in your life?

Live and Breathe the Arts

What kinds of things move you? Music? Art? Poetry? Theater? At Oakwood, we place a special emphasis on cultural programs and performances that both entertain and enlighten.

Our stellar Center for Arts and Education draws residents and their families and friends to a wide spectrum of events on campus. From retracing the steps of Lewis and Clark to taking a weaving class, from hearing experts discuss current events to attending a performance by the Oakwood Chamber Players, residents have access to a wide range of programming that's driven by their interests.

On occasion, a featured artist or inspiring speaker is one of the many talented people who actually lives on campus at Oakwood.

Health and Wellness

Moving to Oakwood is a healthy choice in a number of important respects. The community takes a proactive approach to helping residents stay well. Our focus on intellectual growth, spirituality and social opportunities benefits residents' overall well being, while our fitness opportunities and trained staff focus on physical health. Oakwood offers healthy habits and strategies for exercise, nutrition, bone health, balance and fall prevention—things that are important for remaining active and independent.

In addition, our campus includes a wellness center and offers physical, occupational and speech therapy services.

If and when your health needs change, we're here to help and support you.

As a Continuing Care Retirement Community, Oakwood offers state-of-the-art assisted living, memory care, nursing care and rehabilitation services—all within the University Woods community.

Over 20 physical wellness classes/week.
